Lincoln on Capital and Labor.

Message to Congress, December, 1861.

"There is one point, with its connections, not so hackneyed as most others, to which I ask a brief attention. It is the effort to place capital on an equal footing with, if not above, labor in the structure of government. It is assumed that labor is available only in connection with capital, that nobody labors unless somebody else, owning capital, somehow, by the use of it, induces him to labor. This assumed, it is next considered whether it is best labor. by the use of it, induces him to labor. This assumed, it is next considered whether it is best that capital shall hire laborers, and thus induce them to work by their own consent, or buy them and drive them to it without their consent. Having proceeded thus far, it is naturally concluded that all laborers are either hired laborers, or what we call slaves. Labor is prior to and independent of capital. Capital is only the fruit of labor, and could never have existed if labor had not first existed. Labor is the superior of capital, and deserves much the higher consideration."

HOW THE WORK PEOPLE ARE ROBBED.

ABOR is the only commodity which, by its own exertion, applied to other commodities, can reproduce itself and more. The merchant may buy $100 worth of goods and sell them for $110-but no wealth has been added to the world's supply. The goods and money remain as before-except that they have changed hands. If society were conducted on this basis it would be bankrupt inside of six months. But how different is the result when the employer buys 100 days' labor, for, say, $300, and $200 worth of raw material. He now has $500 invested. Labor transforms itself and the raw material into articles of use, and the employer places the goods on the market. He sells the total product for $600, or $700, or $800, according to his ability to control the selling price. He is, therefore, ahead $100, or $200, or $300 on the transaction. He has made that much "profit," which the Socialist calls surplus value. Even though this particular individual employer be forced to sell his goods which have cost him $500 for less, there has been added to the wealth of society value to the extent of 100 days' human labor-less the actual cost of maintaining that labor. The increase does not go to the laborer, nor to this particular capitalist, but is absorbed by some other capitalist, who is more shrewd than the manufacturer in this particular case. This surplus-value (represented by the difference between the wages paid and the final price of the goods to the consumer) goes to swell the funds in the hands of the capitalist class, and reappears as capital, which is again used in the never-ending round of exploitation.

IT DOES SEEM FUNNY, DOESN'T IT?

HE dividends disbursed November 1st, in New York, were $15,000,000, an increase of one million over the same month of last year. Among the companies which show an increase, says Dun's Review, is the New England Cotton Yarn Company, of Fall River. It is interesting to note this increase in dividends of this concern in connection with the great textile strike of last year, I will send free to sufferers my 64-page booklet when it was developed that men and women and children were actually starving which includes illustrations of MAYER'S INFLATABLE comprehension that men with brains will permit the means of life to be held as private property, subject to the whim of a few individuals, responsible to no one but themselves. A job today is as necessary to the existence of 99 per cent of our population as the very air we breathe. Then why permit the job to be controlled of the working class leaves the despotby irresponsible men? Would you acquiesce in a proposition to permit the supply of air to pass into the hands of a syndicate with a meter on your mouth and on the mouths of your family? You would undoubtedly fight it hard, and would but not those who oppose monarchy. We count no sacrifice too great to prevent the consummation of such a deal. And yet are a democratic nation and hate kings there is no difference in the one and the other in the ultimate results.

THE PLAY WAS INDECENT.

HE police of New York protect the prostitutes of that city and garner many dollars from their unfortunate victims. The gilded dens of vice are depicted on the stage and the police pass it by-but when a man with the power of Shaw steps to the front and tears away the mask and shows the horrors of the traffic-shows that innocent girls are debauched and ruined and started on the road to hell because of inadequate wages paid by department stores and factories -ah! that is different. It IS indecent. Nothing could be truer. Says one New York critic:

"Mrs. Warren's Profession" is an intellectual and unnecessary but coldlooded discussion of a pestilential issue. It is an effort to set before unthinking men and women, by means of the footlights, the putrefaction of social life. It is undoubtedly a true picture, but it is the sort of picture that few want to look at, and that many should not be allowed to look at.

"And should not be allowed to look at." The czar of Russia tried hard to keep the lid on and prevent the world from getting a glimpse of the seething mass beneath, but it flew off-and so, too, it will in this case. The action of the police will cause thousands to read and witness "Mrs. Warren's Profession," which lays bare the "putrefaction of social life."

GIRL SLAVE MURDERED BY HER MASTER.

IRL Slave Murdered by Her Master." No, this did not happen in Turkey or China, or the interior of Africa. The incident reported ing occurred in a house on West Twenty-eighth street, New York. Maybe the reader has been laboring under the delusion that slavery does not exist in the be too much like debating against the United States. Banish the thought. I can assure you that it does-a slavery more abject than any form of debased servitude which ever existed before, so far as our historical record goes. Fifty years ago the youth of America entered the slave marts of the South and purchased a comely lass of tawny color for $1,000 or $1,500. The economic interest of the master prevented him from abusing his chattel as the white slaves of New York and other cities are abused by their masters today. Girl slaves-healthy and physically attractive-now cost from $10 to $50. The price fluctuates according to the demand for factory hands in the industrial market. Today, so fierce is the struggle for existence, that from 300,000 to 400,000 girlsmany of them well educated, well bred and of the best families in the countryare forced to the slave brothels of the great cities, there to become the playthings of the scions of the Grand Dukes of Business. The road downward is swift-and it is seldom that one of these girls retains for two years those physical charms which is seldom that one of these girls retains for two years that orev on the streets and make her attractive to the wealthy snobs. She is then kicked out on the streets and make her attractive to the wealthy snobs. She is then kicked out on the streets to become the property of the human vultures that prey on the unfortunate. And the strange part of all this is that the fathers and brothers of these girls vote to perpetuate the system which condemns them to slavery. The following paragraph is taken from the report of the "Committee of Fifteen" appointed to investigate the causes of sexual slavery in Copenhagen:

It is a sad and humiliating admission to make, at the opening of the Twentieth century, in one of the greatest centers of civilization in the world, that in numerous instances it is not passion or corrupt inclination, but actual physical want (poverty) that impels young women along the road to ruin.

The capitalists are never satisfied with their conditions, and are ever scheming to get more wealth—but they preach o the work people that they should be satisfied with their conditions!

I can't for the life of me see why men orefer to work for some boss who tells hem where they may work, when the may work, where they may live, how much rent they shall pay, how much wages they may have, and how much hey must pay for goods, rather than to have Socialism, which will permit them to have control of the industries in which they work and determine all these things for themselves. 'Deed I can't. Can you?'

Fillipo Florio, an Italian, left four million dollars to the poor and then commit-ted suicide. He had accumulated the money by usury—loaning to the profilgate sons of the rich. In his will he said The money I took from the wealthy who took it from the poor, and I now give it back to the poor," and said that that sentence should be placed over every door of a great hospital which he directed his executors to build. What a world!

Prince Louis of Battenberg, one of the parasites that has been sucking the life of the German work people for centuries, was greeted in New York by the navy and several thousand dollars' worth of ammunition wasted in his honor! A Statement Concerninga Publication

.....a Publication Plan.

To My Comrades of the Socialist Movement:

Something over a year ago I took an outline of "The Jungle" to a publishing house, and signed a contract for the bringing out of the book this fall. When the story was half written this firm declared that they considered it "equal to the strongest of Zola's writing, and with an added dignity of its own;" but when it was completed they told me that they could not publish it as it stood, and would have to require omissions and alterations that would ruin the book for the pur pose for which I had written it.

It has always been repugnant to me to have my books exploited in the business world. I am not a business man myself, and I do not write my books from pusiness motives. As I thought over the whole proposition, it occurred to me that if I only had the capital to print an edition myself, I would take the chances of an appeal to the Socialists to find it an audience and make it a success. If the book has to be published by a capitalist concern its price will be fixed at a dollar and a half, postage extra, and this price you will have to pay if you wish to own a copy of it. The profits of the book store and the jobber, the traveling salesman a copy of it. The profits of the book store and the pobler, the traveling satesman and the publisher, the author and the reviewer (in the form of advertising), the printer, the binder and the paper trust—all these you will have to furnish, and furnish to the end of time. Of Bellamy's "Looking Backward" our party press could sell thousands of copies every year; but though the book was published affected or twenty years ago, the publishers still refuse to print a cheap edition of the And were investant than this a publisher may completely suppress a book it. And more important than this, a publisher may completely suppress a book if he sees fit. Ten years ago the Standard Oil Company put its secret agencies at work, with the result that even to this day it is difficult to obtain a copy of Henry D. Lloyd's "Wealth vs Commonwealth." I may be mistaken, but I believe I know where I could get a good sum of money to withhold "The Jungle" from the public; and I do not believe the book would be out a month before its publishers would receive mysterious offers for its copyright.

The more I thought about all this the more clearly I saw that it was not simply a question of business, but one of morals—that it would be act of cowardice and unfaith to turn "The Jungle" over to the profit-mongers without first giving my comrades a chance to say whether or not they were prepared to care for it. I believed that I had written a book that the Socialists could not let lie; and if they were going to buy it, I said, why might they not send the money to me and wait a month or two while I printed it with the capital thus furnished? My friends all tell me that I am foolish to take the risk; but I believe in the Socialist movement—if I did not, I should never have written "The Jungle."

If I could afford to do it, I should offer this book to the world at cost, but I cannot do that. I have been six years learning to write novels, and during that time I have worked sixteen hours a day and written nine books, of which four have been published; and the sum total of my earnings from that source has been less a thousand dollars. I had a wife and child to take care of, and we lived in tents and shanties and garrets, and begged and borrowed the money to live in them. There have been months when I have done all the housework, the cooking and washing of dishes, and taken care of a baby and a sick wife besides.

I am not grumbling about this, for it was all practice for "The Jungle"-I am simply making the point that it was exhausting practice, which has left us all upon the verge of prostration, and has made it impossible for me to take any risks with this last book.

The volume, as I plan to publish it, will be equal in every respect to the best $1.50 copyright novel. It will be clearly printed upon the best paper, and will have six new full-page illustrations upon plate paper, drawings by a young artist which I consider a real help to the imagination—something that can seldom be said of such drawings. The book will have a special cover design, and the binding will be of the best. In this connection it is to be pointed out that "The Jungle" is more than twice as long as the average $1.50 novel, and this means that it will cost much more to make—nearly twice as much for the plates at the outset, and for the paper, printing and postage all the time. The postage will be at least fourteen cents a copy, and so, if you were ordering the copy from the capitalist publishing house, you would have to pay $1.64 a copy. Its price, if I publish it, will be $1.20 net, postpaid, for single copies; for five copies, $5.50; ten copies, $10.00; twenty-five copies, $23.00; fifty copies, $45.00; one hundred copies, $80.00—express or freight in all cases prepaid. This will be the price to all comers—that is to say, the Socialist movement will get the same terms as the book trade, and later on there will be a paper edition, upon thin paper, to save postage.

I will wait twenty days to find out whether or not you care to have "The Jungle" published in this way, and if orders enough are received, the book will be ready a month later. The first edition will consist of the exact number of copies ordered within the twenty days, and it will be called the "Sustainer's Edition," and have inside the cover a label explaining that it was one of the copies ordered to make possible the publication of the book. All orders must be accompanied by the money (check or postoffice money order preferred), and they should be addressed not to me personally, but to "The Jungle Publishing Company," Princeton N. J. If you wish to make the book a Christmas present to your friends, state this in your order and engraved certificates will be sent you, each one stating that a copy of "The Jungle" has been ordered and paid for, and will be mailed upon the late of publication. The receipt of all orders will be promptly acknowledged, and the result will be made known through the Socialist press. If the number of orders should be too few to justify the undertaking, the orders will be filled, at the same price, by the capitalist house which brings out the book, or else the money will be returned upon demand. UPTON SINCLAIR.

A WORD TO THE APPEAL ARMY FROM JACK LONDON.

Dear Comrades:

Here it is at last! The book we have been waiting for these many years! The 'Uncle Tom's Cabin" of wage slavery! Comrade Sinclair's book, "The Jungle!" and what "Uncle Tom's Cabin" did for black slaves, "The Jungle" has a large chance to do for the wage-slaves of today.

It is essentially a book of today. The beautiful theoretics of Bellamy's "Look ing Backward" are all very good. They served a purpose, and served it well. "Looking Backward" was a great book. But I dare to say that "The Jungle," which has no beautiful theoretics, is even a greater book.

It is alive and warm. It is brutal with life. It is written of sweat and blood and groans and tears. It depicts, not what man ought to be, but what man is compelled to be in this, our world, in the Twentieth century. It depicts, not what our country ought to be, or what it seems to be in the fancies of Fourth of July spell-binders, the home of liberty and equality of opportunity; but it depicts what our country really is, the home of oppression and injustice, a nightmare of misery, an inferno of suffering, a human hell, a jungle of wild beasts.

And there you have the very essence of Comrade Sinelair's book—the jungle And that is what he has named it. This book must go. And you, comrades, must make it go. It is a labor of love on the part of the man who wrote it. It must be a labor of love on your part to distribute it.

And take notice and remember, comrades, this book is straight proletarian. And straight proletarian it must be throughout. It is written by an intellectual proletarian. It is written for the proletarian. It is to be published by a proletarian publishing house. It is to be read by the proletariat. And depend upon it, if it is not circulated by the proletariat it will not be circulated at all. In short, it must be a supreme proletarian effort. Remember, this book must go out in the face of the enemy. No capitalist publishing house would dare to publish it. It will be laughed at—some; jeered at—some; abused some; but most of all, worst of all, the most dangerous treatment it will receive is that of silence. For that is the way of capitalism.

Comrades, do not forget the conspiracy of silence. Silence is the deadliest danger this book has to face. The book stands on its own merits. You have read it and you know. All that it requires is a hearing. This hearing you must get for it. You must not permit this silence. You must shout out this book from the housetops; at all times, and at all places. You must talk about it, howl about it, do You might as well spray a cesspool with everything but keep quiet about it. the order of things. Andrew Carnegie never manufactured enough steel himself to form the eye of a cambric needle, and yet he controls the steel industry of this country.

There is not a minister in Columbus who dares to enter his pulpit next Sunday evening and preach the true, unadulterated doctrine of Jesus Christ. If he did wouldn't guarantee to get him a job the next morning.

And as long as we have private ownership of public utilities, just so long will we have these conditions. We hear of good men entering politics for the purpose of purifying it with honest methods and they are now in the penitentiary. possible.
